

Sayaqtes

The Sayaqtes team is excited to announce our work with BCALMA. We are coming together because of our shared commitment to empowering Indigenous communities, building meaningful relationships, supporting sustainable land stewardship, and strengthening capacity through the transmission of knowledge to future generations.

Our team is a multidisciplinary team of professionals with expertise spanning land management, governance, economic development, environmental stewardship, marketing and communications. Our diverse backgrounds in academia, executive leadership, project management, justice reform, marketing, policy writing, and business operations uniquely position us to support First Nations communities in achieving their self-determined goals.

Meet the Sayaqtes Team:

Darwin Biamonte, MBA, CAPM, BBA ~ Tsa-sah-qwíl-teleq (Xwchíyò:m - Cheam First Nation)

An Indigenous Business Leadership MBA graduate and Certified Associate Project Manager, Darwin specializes in Indigenous economic development. His experience spans consulting, the BC public service, First Nations economic development corporations, and the First Nations Finance Authority. He has led successful grant writing teams and managed infrastructure, startups, and community enterprise initiatives.

Jason Campbell, MBA ~ Texwalexw / Ti'h'na'sa'np (Sq'éwqel - Seabird Island Band)

An Assistant Professor at the University of the Fraser Valley and former Executive Director of a large Indigenous community organization, Jason brings deep knowledge in Indigenous justice, governance, and community development. He currently chairs Stó:lō Community Futures and supports initiatives that foster entrepreneurship, cultural revitalization, and restorative justice.

Jennifer Campbell, MBA ~Tsa-sah-qwíl-elhlot (Xwchíyò:m - Cheam First Nation)

An Indigenous Land Management / Governance professional, Jennifer has supported many Indigenous communities in land-related operations. Her previous work focused on Indigenous food sovereignty, forestry, land development, environmental stewardship, environmental remediation, permitting, animal wellness and cultural stewardship.

Adriëlle Mittet Vanheule, BBA, BA.Com

An internationally trained marketing professional with degrees in International Business Management and International Communication Management, Adriëlle brings creative strategy and global insight to our team. She has contributed to digital marketing and community engagement projects with the Seabird Island Band and Sq'éwqel Development Corporation. Now based in Belgium and working as a Marketing Officer at Signpost, Adriëlle bridges communities and brands through meaningful storytelling and design.

Together, we offer a culturally grounded, community-centered approach to Indigenous development. From Land Code and economic ventures to food sovereignty and branding — we help Nations and organizations build strong, sustainable futures rooted in culture, vision, and innovation.

Doing good work with good hands
